The ‘Saving Promise’ Campaign A Call to Action!

There is no greater cause than the call to action to save a life. The ‘Saving Promise’ Campaign is about just that. It proposes policies that will strengthen current domestic violence laws and advocacies, and create more safety networks to protect victims and their children.

Pledge your support for the ‘Saving Promise’ Campaign which proposes such changes as

- Stricter restraining order policies
- Mandatory counseling for batterers
- More rights for victim’s families to intervene on behalf of a victim
- A Domestic Violence Assessment Unit and further training for law enforcement agencies
- Child’s Life Protection Act
- National behavior and support hotline for batterers
- Programs to raise awareness amongst children in public and private schools

L.Y.Marlow’s goal is to obtain 1 million signatures to take to Congress to implore them to strengthen domestic violence laws.

Why is L.Y. Marlow Doing This?

Ms. Marlow is the award-winning author of Color Me Butterfly, a true-story about four generations of mothers and daughters who suffered and survived 60+ years of domestic violence and abuse. The book is inspired by the women in Marlow’s family: her grandmother, her mother, herself and her daughter.

Ms. Marlow’s daughter is currently involved in an abusive relationship and when she learned that the man in her daughter’s life had tried to kill her daughter and had also threatened the life of their baby girl named Promise, Marlow tried to intervene and seek justice on their behalf and was told she could not.

As a survivor, an advocate, a mother, a woman who comes from four generations of domestic violence and abuse, Ms. Marlow has vowed not only to break the cycle of abuse in her family but to make a difference for others as well.

Her difference? The ‘Saving Promise’ Campaign which she plans to take to Congress to implore them to change current laws. Laws that have been ignored for far too long, especially considering the alarming rate at which women and children are victimized every day.
