

Suggested Interview / Article Topics

As an observer of four generations of family abuse, a victim in her own right, the mother of a victim, and a survivor, L.Y. Marlow is all too familiar with warning signs, consequences, and recovery processes associated with abuse.

L.Y. Marlow hopes to introduce an open dialogue of communication about all types of abuse to help friends, family members, and victims work together to prevent, survive, and overcome abusive relationships.

L.Y. Marlow can speak fluently on many topics including:

- Breaking the Cycle of Abuse
- 10 Ways a Parent can Spot if their Daughter is in an Abusive Relationship
- 10 Common Characteristics of a Potential Abuser
- Get OUT: 5 Ways to Extricate Yourself from an Abusive Relationship
- Why Intelligent Women Stay in Abusive Relationships
- 10 Ways to help a Victim of Abuse
- Abusive Friendships and What to Avoid
- Life After Abuse: 5 Steps to Reclaiming Your Life
- Healing the Pain of Childhood Abuse (Adult Survivors)
- But He Didn't Hit Me: Getting Out Before It's Too Late!

L. Y. Marlow is the author of Color Me Butterfly, an emotionally poignant family account of four generations of women challenged by the realities of abuse. Readers can't help but become vested in the emotional whirlwind of the story as they are simultaneously implored to take a realistic account of their own lifestyle.